

Open Borders, Globalism, and The Bible

Bob Evely (October 2026)

Christian believer ... before you align with the idea of Open Borders, consider this.

Open Borders inevitably leads to Globalism. Individual nations are no longer sovereign, but are a part of the world order and ultimately brought under the rule of “elite authorities” such as the World Economic Council, the World Health Organization, the United Nations, etc. (No longer advisory bodies but wielding authority and power.)

“Science”, so-called, is today the “objective” mechanism used to bring people under subjection to these elite authorities. But the “science” cited is not truly objective science but is a single-narrative position strongly biased by money or power. There is no consideration of objective research or of the voices of scientists who may disagree. And with the global Media aligned with Globalism you will never see anything but the approved narrative.

GLOBALISM IS IN DIRECT OPPOSITION TO GOD. Let me explain.

1. In Genesis 11 mankind from all nations came together to build a city and a tower that would reach into heaven, “lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.” (Genesis 11:4) But God had commanded mankind to be fruitful and inhabit the earth, so this attempt to come together was a direct rebellion against God. This was a world thinking it did not need God, and that countermanded God’s plans and directives. So God scattered them to distant places and confused their tongue, making it difficult to communicate. Globalism, enabled by a worldwide internet, is attempting to gather all nations together once again. It is a repeat of the sin of Babel.

2. In Revelation 13 we read of events to take place in the final era upon this present earth. Here we read of a world government – Globalism becoming reality. But it is not a benevolent rule. Those refusing to bow to the godless ruler would not be permitted to buy or sell – so they cannot survive. (Does this sound similar to the excessive regulations put into place during Covid, as “science” was used in an attempt to force everyone to accept the shot, with no talk of the dangers and no talk of any other remedy that many doctors insisted were producing positive results?)

3. The history recorded in the Bible always spoke of individual sovereign nations and rulers of those nations. God never commanded the nations to come together into one. He never reversed his command at Babel to scatter.

4. Jesus Himself, when He walked upon the earth, never challenged or attempted to change the government of His day. He simply functioned within the Roman government, expressing that Israel had been chosen by God to carry the message of salvation and peace to the world – not overthrowing or changing the complexion of that Roman rule, but functioning within it. The Bible tells us that one day the kingdom of Israel will be restored – a sovereign nation that will minister to other nations – but it never talks about this being global government.

5. When the apostle Paul came with a gospel to the nations that he was commissioned with, he also recognized the rule of Rome that he lived within. Yes, the restored kingdom would one day come to Israel and they would once again serve as God’s mouthpiece to the world, but always the nations existed and there was never an attempt to bring all nations together into a Global government.

6. Even at the conclusion of Revelation there are nations and kings entering the holy city (Revelation 21:24). God has not formed a single world government – He continues to interact with the individual nations. It is only in the end, as recorded in 1 Corinthians 15:24-29, that God nullifies all sovereignty and all authority and power (all governments) – once Christ has brought all into subjection to God and He becomes All in all, in accord with His plan. But even then it is not a global government. It is the elimination of all government, no longer needed as God lives in their midst.

The invisible realm which includes Satan, the Deceiver, is real – and must never be ignored. We may not be able to see the Deceiver visibly, but since the day he led Adam and Eve astray he has been opposing God at every turn, attempting to lead mankind away from God by casting doubt and suspicion.

This being the case, we must always consider motives behind the scene before dealing with things only at the visible, superficial level. Is there money to be made? Is there power to be built? Is there authority to be exerted? What is the end game? A healthy degree of skepticism is wise in light of the influences and motives at work behind the scenes.

As Christians we're called to do good in the world. We're not called to expect the government to do it for us, and we're not called to promote changing a government into a Socialist state. This would be to extract money forcibly from the pockets of all, to do the work that the Christian community should be doing themselves voluntarily, and in a far more effective way.

At the local level we're prepared to help those that truly need help – those willing to work and do all they can to stand on their own. But remove the consequences for those content at being lazy, and what have we accomplished? How have we helped these people by making them forever dependent on a welfare system? Welfare simply pacifies and quiets the masses while holding them captive, removing their self-respect, and eliminating any desire to work toward self-improvement.

In the political realm, we should seek a government that provides stability and peace so we can live a quiet life and help others.

Let me close with this thought. God is in the process of teaching all of His creation to seek Him and to become subjected to Him. Every government will one day fail, even the best of them (and I believe that our Constitutional Republic is without a doubt the best). But let us not fail to see the Deceiver's hand as he attempts to use Globalism – a world without borders – as a way of bringing the world into subjection to him! Only God deserves that place, not a godless world society that is based on absolute power with evil intent.
