

Things All Americans Should Agree On

There are some things that all Americans should agree on, regardless of which political Party one aligns with. Common sense tells us that ...

- All fraud involving tax dollars should be uncovered – rooted out and eliminated. Fraud is stealing from the pockets of taxpayers, and it is the responsibility of our elected officials to guard against it.
- All waste of tax dollars should also be uncovered and eliminated.
- Only U.S. citizens should be permitted to vote.
- Only the count of U.S. citizens should be considered when determining electoral votes, the number of U.S. House members to be elected, federal aid proportionments, etc.
- Safeguards must be in place to ensure that only legal votes are counted.
- Any who take part in schemes of any kind to register illegal votes or to otherwise alter our elections should be prosecuted for treason against our nation.
- Iran, supporting terrorism and placing no value on human life, must never be permitted to have nuclear weapons.
- Our borders must be secure, preventing any from entering without going through proper channels.
- Failure on the part of a President or other government officials to secure our borders must be treated as malfeasance or misfeasance.
- Any who enter our country illegally cannot be permitted to remain.
- No financial aid should be provided to those that are here illegally.
- Law enforcement is necessary and should never be “defunded.” Without law enforcement society would quickly devolve into chaos and anarchy.
- The right to bear arms is a Constitutional right and must never be restricted. If bad guys have the ability to secure weapons of a certain “caliber” – the right of good guys cannot be curtailed.
- The right to bear arms is not only to enable us to defend ourselves and our family, but also to defend against future government that may seek to impose censorship, remove Constitutional rights, etc.
- Censorship is unacceptable. At times people may have their feelings hurt by speech, but freedom of speech is a necessity in a free society, and censorship is a threat to our freedom and liberty. If we censor things deemed offensive to some, where does it end – and who decides what is offensive?
- Socialism which must be oppressive and controlling to survive, and Communism which is always the result of Socialism ... are evil forms of government and must always be opposed.
- Trade arrangements with other nations should be fair to the U.S., and it is the obligation of our elected officials to always look after our own interests. Every nation has a similar charge, to look after their own interests.
